

My college life 18

Dear readers, I am back. I have written about 18 compositions now. I am glad you will be happy about them. Thank you! And I hope there are more comments on the line about my writing. Last time I told you something about my daily life in the college. This time I should continue my story. All the stories I have told you on the line nearly happened in the first year of my college life. And in the first year I am very exciting about anything in my campus, because they are new to me. So, I can say the first year in the college is like a dream to me. This time I want to tell you something happened in the second year. The time is just before the beginning of the second year. In the summer vacation I once phoned to the shy girl. Surprisingly, she told me her grandfather died not long ago. And she was busy with the funeral. And she also asked me to tell my teacher her condition. She would go to the university a little later. I promised to do like she said. To tell the truth, at that time I was sad like her. And in my heart, I still liked her. So I tried my best to help her. When I went back to the college, I told the teacher her condition. Surprisingly, I was told that she failed two courses in the last final exams. At that time, I felt it was another big shock to her, except for her grandfather's death. And I also knew that she had known this news. Here, I should tell you, the readers, that in my college if you have three courses failed during the college life, you will not get your B.A. or B.S. As for us (专升本) it means that you will not get the graduation certificate, which can prove that you have completed all the courses in the three years successfully. Furthermore, if you failed in the final exam each term, then in the first two weeks, you have to take part in an exam about that course you failed. It means you have to prepare in two weeks. So the shy girl really was in trouble. Firstly, her beloved grandpa was dead, I knew from her that when she was young, it was her grandpa who took care of her, because her parents all have to work and short of time to take care of her. Secondly, she failed two courses and had to take part in them again. She had to prepare for them. And there was another shock drawing near, which, I will tell you later. When I got to the college, I was told that in the last final exam, there are 13 students failed in it. You know there are 29 students in my class altogether. Luckily, I passed all the courses in the final exams. My two poor fellows, Curl Wang and Silent Zheng, were included in the sad students. In fact, I was nearly failed. You know I have two courses a little above 60. One is 60.5, the other is 60. So they all said that I was a lucky dog. I said yes I was lucky but not dog. Then after a while, she the shy girl went back the college and has finished the reexam (补考). But the real trouble comes. One day my teacher asked all the carders in the class to his office and has a meeting. When we went to it, he said in the last final exam, there are 3 carders failed. So; he thinks that it is not a good example to the other students. So he wants to let them pay more attention to the study. And the duty they deal with will transfer to other students. It means that they are fired. I definitely know that she the shy girl will not be our monitor any longer. And the things happened later gave me a big shock. My teacher said he wanted to arrange a election in the class. And he wanted me to be the monitor. You know I was really very surprised. Because before the meeting he did not contact with me and did not talk about this matter. Otherwise, this duty belonged to the shy girl. If I managed the duty, maybe she would think I want to struggle with her about this duty. It will not do any good to me and to our relation. Moreover, I am not a person who wants to control others and to be a leader. Otherwise I am a little excited, because I will be the monitor. So at that time my mind is complicated. And you know the results that if I was elected monitor, please continue concern my writing tomorrow.

（来源：http://news.hongen.com/news/show\_33\_2944.html）